

Maritime Security Team Leader (MSTL)

The Trident MSTL course is open to security professionals that have completed the MSO (Offshore) course, or can provide sufficient evidence of possessing the knowledge, skills and experience of operating as a Maritime Security Operator.

The course provides experienced maritime security professionals with the knowledge and skills required to operate as a team leader on offshore maritime security contracts, whether operating on static vessels, Offshore Energy Installations or providing security for vessels in transit through high threat waters globally. Each applicant will be individually assessed on their merits prior to course loading.

Why attend this course?

The MSTL course is a natural progression for experienced Maritime Security Operators to step up to a leadership role within a Maritime Security Team and should be undertaken by all aspiring Team Leaders.

Benefits of achieving the Trident MSTL training standard

The qualification demonstrates a higher level of knowledge and skills and provides the professional with the important tools needed to be an effective Team Leader. The course is designed to prepare the MSO for the leadership role within the Maritime Security Team. Our training courses are delivered by highly qualified former members of the Special Boat Service and Royal Marines Counter Terrorist and Maritime Interdiction Teams as well as experienced maritime security professionals. The Trident training team work in the industry and have current first-hand experience.
